I comes to the Gladstone stage

Starring Andy Massingham and Emmanuelle Zeesman, the absurdist comedy, I, features a 40-man chorus of local amateur and professional actors between the ages of 15 to 65, who play the many facets of a playwright who teaches a young woman to write. The show opens Thursday and runs through Nov. 27.

Gas prices pump up

◆ Gas stations seeing instances of people pumping gas and driving off without paying ◆ Prices in Ottawa are higher than the Canadian average Tatiana Kerr has a car. But yesterday, the 23-year-old was standing out at a bus stop on Albert Street, something she's been doing more of lately.

Rising gas prices have impelled Kerr to keep her car parked in favour of walking, or taking the bus, when she can.

"I'm a student, so the less I have to fill the tank, the better," she said.

Gas prices continued to rise in Ottawa over the weekend, with the median price being 112.3 at dozens of gas stations across the city and, according to ottawagasprices.com, running as high as 112.9 at the Petro-Canada on 9th Line Road.

"We do get people complaining about the gas prices," said Ahmed A., who works at the Petro-Canada on Bronson and Gladstone. "They'll say that gas is more here than in Gatineau ... but for the most part, they'll suck it up. There's not much they can do about it."

Lisa Whitt occasionally drives, but has found a way to avoid being affected by rising gas prices. The Ottawa resident uses the car-sharing service Vrtucar "for convenience, because we don't have to pay gas or maintenance," she said.

Although Brad Fisher said the prices are high, he said it doesn't affect his driving habits. "I don't drive that much," he said.

Paramedics can never be too prepared

As the capital of Canada, Ottawa needs to be prepared for all kinds of emergency scenarios that paramedic services elsewhere may never have to worry about.

"There are all sorts of events going on in Ottawa, some planned, some unplanned," said Darryl Wilton, president of the Professional Paramedic Association of Ottawa.

"In today's world ... whether you like it or not, the reality is Ottawa is pretty high up on the terror list ... so we always have to respond to events like that."

That means paramedics here have to look at more sophisticated training and better technology and resources, said Wilton.

Over the weekend, the city played host to the annual Paramedicine Expo and Conference, which, as Canada's largest paramedic event, welcomed hundreds from all over the country.

Designed to educate paramedics on the latest developments in medical treatments and technology, the weekend focused on education by simulation.

"If you go back prior to amalgamation, there just wasn't that level of interest or investment in the system," Wilton said.

"Now we're learning to train with (police) and train by simulation, so that we can learn to be in those hot zones and learn to protect ourselves." TRACEY TONG

It's beginning to look a lot like Christmas

 ▶ Shoppers think decorations are too early but remain divided on whether they can annoy people
 ♠ 'Right after Halloween ... it's right to business': Shopper

Hundreds of people lined up at the Rideau Centre and St. Laurent shopping malls this weekend, not for the savings on fall fashions, but to have their kids sit on Santa's lap.

Days after Remembrance Day, decorations, Christmas music and even jolly old Saint Nick were out in full force in Ottawa and many shoppers felt that all of it came a little too early this year.

"When Christmas came, it (used to be) exciting ... Now it's not — they decorate and they put the songs and everything out too early, so by the time December comes you're fed up," said shopper Merle Quesmel.

Quesmel was shocked to see stores like Dollarama sell Halloween decorations right next to the Christmas "You can only listen to Christmas music for so long and it just stresses you out by the time that Christmas actually comes."

"I think that people that actually work in the malls might be a little pissed off," said shopper Kirk Chin.

Helai Yousufzai, a jewelry store employee, said that mid-November is too soon for Christmas hustle but it might be good because it can encourage people to start shopping earlier.

"At one point everyone gets so stressed out and the mall gets crazy packed ... so earlier is better," said Yousufzai. • JOE LOFARO

• Flexible hours, work from home and business support attract many women to franchises

Whether from a bumpy economy or just a desire to make their own hours, more and more Canadian women are going into business for themselves.

Statistics Canada counted 877,000 self-employed women in 2006, an 18 per cent increase from 1996.

Many potential women entrepreneurs checked out the National Franchise and Business Opportunities Show at Lansdowne Park this weekend, where more than 60 exhibitors offered a path to business owner-

Show manager Karen Heffer said that in eight years she's seen the number of women attendees climb steadily.

Many women, she said, want a better balance of work and family life, and sometimes franchises are the answer.

Angela Bush and her husband, Dave, attended the show yesterday. He works in the tech industry, she works in the non-profit sector, and whatever their new enterprise is, they said, they're going into it together.

"Yeah, absolutely, we have to," Angela said.

Dave said they were at-tracted to the assistance offered by franchisors, "the safety aspect where someone can guide you along the process."

Harper puts a positive spin on Asian summits

• G20, APEC summits offered few 'bold' plans PM called for last week • Global economy still a concern

Stephen Harper tried to put a positive spin on the twin Asian summits that struggled in vain to produce a gameplan for the global economy's long-term recov-ery. The APEC summit in Japan concluded yesterday with the 21 leaders vowing to continue working to-wards freer trade, and promising to refrain from anything that might spark a currency war.

At the earlier G20 summit in Korea, the leaders pledged to continue talking about how to ensure their currencies and trade balances don't stray too far in-

Pledge

All the leaders pledged to restructure their economies so that the middle class would see greater prosperity and participate in the global econ-to dangerous territory.

But neither summit came close to delivering the "bold" action Harper had called for on the eve of the meetings to keep the global economy from drifting back to the brink.

"The necessity of dealing with medium-term questions of global imbalances and exchange rates — those do have to be tackled over time," Harper said. "They don't have to be tackled this month or next month in order to avert any kind of cataclysm'

Harper said Canada's budget won't be affected by the loss of momentum in talks to shore up the global economy - even though a strong Canadian dollar is likely to hurt exports at a time when the Canadian recovery is shaky.

PM may get loaned out book back

Prime Minister Stephen Harper wrapped up his summits in Asia with an exclusive dinner invitation to the palace of Japan's Emperor Akihito.

The invitation to Harper and his wife, Laureen, is to show gratitude for the hospitality the Emperor and his wife, Empress Michiko, were shown in the summer of 2009 during a visit to Canada.

The Harpers loaned their cottage at Harring-ton Lake to the royal couple for a few days of quiet relaxation during their visit. The Harpers cleared out the house for the visit, but the prime minister said he left out one of his Beatles piano books, and the empress borrowed it.

"I'm interested to see what kind of progress she's made over the last year and a half," he ioked.

Canadian boy among dead in Mexico blast

Hotel hosting several groups from Canada, including a company vacation, wedding

A nine-year-old boy was among five Canadians killed yesterday in a powerful explosion at a hotel on Mexico's Caribbean coast that was hosting hundreds of Canadian tourists, including wedding guests from Alberta.

Eight Canadians were also injured, including two listed in critical condition.

Francisco Alor, attorney general of the state of Quintana Roo, where the resort is located, confirmed that five Canadians were killed in the blast that took place in the lobby of the 676room Grand Princess Riviera Hotel in the city of Playa del Carmen around investigationsInitial were focusing on the possi-bility that naturally released gas from a nearby swamp had built up under the hotel and somehow ignited. Officials at the resort said no gas lines were located in the area where the blast occurred.

According to local media reports, the Mexican Red Cross released the names of the victims last night.

The five Canadians were identified as Marlene Ferguson, 51, Christopher Paul Charman, 33, John Paul Charman, nine, Malcolm and Michael Johnson, both in their 20s. Their hometowns were not immediately released.

The explosion blasted chunks of flooring through the roof and left a crater a metre deep inside the building. It also blew out windows. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Job stress linked to heart attack risk in women

• Study finds that stress is particularly problematic when people have no opportunity to control it

Women with high levels of job strain have a significantly higher risk of suffering a heart attack or other cardiovascular adverse event compared to those who report less stressful work lives, a major study has found

Researchers, who will present their findings at the annual meeting of the American Heart Association in Chicago, found a 40 per cent increased risk for heart attack, stroke, the need for invasive procedures like bypass surgery, and death from cardiovascular disease.

The risk of heart attack was almost 88 per cent higher in women with sustained on-the-job stress, while the risk of bypass surgery or other procedures, such as balloon angioplasty to open up blocked coronary arteries, was about 43 per cent higher.

Job strain, a form of psychological stress, is defined as having a demanding job but little or no decisionmaking power or opportunities to use creative skills. The study also found that job insecurity was linked to risk factors for cardiovascular disease. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Oil chiefs open ears

Oilsands executives are heading to three U.S. cities this week to hear what environmental groups, business leaders and academics have to say about an industry heavily criticized for its environmental impact.

The Canadian Association of Petroleum Producers has been holding discussions in Canadian cities since the summer.

Canada is by far the largest crude supplier to the U.S., shipping some two million barrels per day south of the border. Many see the oilsands as a safe, reliable source of energy.

ALBERTA: THE OTHER OIL DISASTER A billboard in Seattle urges would-be visitors to "rethink" planning a trip to Alberta. 🏾 🌉

But the oilsands industry has come under fire, gar-nering the label "dirty oil" in some circles. Critics say Alberta crude emits more carbon dioxide than other sources, damages ecosystems in northern Alberta and endangers the health of communities in the region.

Over the summer, a U.S. environmental group launched a controversial ad campaign urging tourists to "rethink" travelling to Alberta. THE CANADIAN PRESS

THERE'S TIME TO PLAN DIET FOR BRONSON

It's hard to believe that butt-ugly Bronson Avenue will get even uglier next year, but that's the plan.

s with the recent tear-ups of major streets like Bank and Preston, the sewer and water infrastructure underneath, some of it 100 years old, has to be replaced, and that means major surgery on the busy north-south artery.

This will be painful and disruptive for motorists, pedestrians and cyclists, none of whom are currently exactly enamoured of this four-lane nightmare, which bogs down miserably every rush hour.

Pedestrians don't have enough room on the narrow sidewalks, separation from traffic or safe crossings. Drivers are alternately terrified and frustrated as they contend with heavy traffic in which the most reckless of lanehopping drivers tend to set the pace. Businesses can't offer customers much in the way of parking. Only the most intrepid cyclists will brave the Bronson gauntlet. This is a street nobody loves.

Since everything's being taken apart anyway, area residents, including the Centretown and Dalhousie Community Associations, are agitating to have Bronson north of the Queensway put back together in a way that works better for everyone.

Organizers had to dig up extra chairs last week for a public meeting at the McNabb Commu-

"Their centrepiece

Bronson on a road diet,

reducing it from four traffic lanes

to three ..."

nity Centre, chaired by Somerset Coun. Diane Holmes. This was no crowd of NIMBYist anti-car zealots. (The parking lot was packed with Volvos and Hondas.)

They aren't trying to banish or even reduce the traffic on Bronson, which would just send it onto other streets in the neighbourhood. They envision the same amount of traffic, just slower and safer.

Their centrepiece idea is putting Bronson on a "road diet," reducing it from four traffic lanes to three, one lane each way with a turning lane in the middle. The fourth lane would go back to pedestrians and cyclists in the form of wider sidewalks, bike lanes and, radical as this sounds, maybe even a few patches of green here and there.

The proponents point to successful road diets like the one applied to St. George Street in downtown Toronto, between College and Bloor. That road shrank from four lanes to two, and, according to a report by Transport Canada, reduced speeding while increasing bike traffic, walkability and safety. Accidents went down by 40 per

With a good year to go before the replacement of Bronson's underside, there's time to plan a proper facelift for its surface.

We asked: Should Canada extend the Afghan mission?

TORONTO, Of course we should! To give you an example, it would be the same as a contractor half way through a project saying to the client, well I'm done here, leaving the client with no way of finishing the work. This would be an insult to the men and women who have served over there and to the Afghans and especially to the ones we lost. If you start something I was told you had to finish it. JAY HOWSON should not continue the mission in Afghanistan. In the last couple of years all I have heard is (with regards to the auto sector and recession), we will do whatever the Americans do. Every time an event or problem arises, our leaders just wait to see what the Americans will do—then we follow. Now our leader is changing his mind like the flag blowing in the wind. Good luck Canada, we are going to need it.

TORONTO. No, Canada

JAMES BROWN

TORONTO. Canada should get out of Afghanistan, the sooner the better! The world is unable to change this country. It is hell for our young soldiers.

Emma Watson, who recently finished a new movie, My Week With Marilyn, talks to Metro about Harry Potter, going to college in the U.S. and her passion for ethical fashion

What did you think of the last Harry Potter book being turned into two separate movies?

I'll be honest, I was like, 'Is this a money spinner?' I was very cynical and dubious about it.

Then, I talked with the producers and they said, Look, there's no way we can fit everything into one movie. It won't be as true to the book.

Was this movie the most physically demanding?

Yes, especially in part two. There were days when I was in tears. More than anything, being cold and wet takes so much energy out of you.

But David (Yates, the director) said, 'It looks better when you look vulnerable. It's so much realer.'

He's right. We were these bedraggled, unlikely heroes.

But there were days when I was so tired that I'd fall asleep anywhere. Did you take any souvenirs from the set?

I asked for permission to take Hermione's time turner from the third movie, and the cloak and my wand.

How does filming fit in with college?

It doesn't really, I'm not going to lie. I have to work really hard when I'm there to earn my professors' respect. I'm doing a history major. I love it.

You've also done an organic fashion line for Italian designer Alberta Ferretti and you previously did a range for ethical clothing company People Tree. Why is ethical fashion so important to you?

I would work for anyone for free if they are pre-pared to make their clothes fair trade and organic.

Nobody has any contact with the way things are made. I find it alarming that nobody questions it.

I'd love to persuade (Burberry design chief)
Christopher Bailey to do even just a section of Burberry that was organic or fair trade.

It's something that I want to champion. It makes such a huge difference to the lives of the people who are making it and the environment.

The impact is epic.

Emma's growing passion for ethical fashion

Fashionista Emma Watson talks about her new clothing line for Alberta Ferretti, and why ethical fashion is so important to her.

When did you cut your hair?

About three months ago -I didn't tell anyone I was going to do it. I went into a hair salon in New York, and took a couple of pictures of Mia Farrow and said 'I want to look like this.

What are you working on,

I just did an organic clothing line with Alberta Ferretti. Alberta wrote to me and said, 'I saw what you did with [ethical brand] People Tree and I think it's a great idea. Would you do something with me?' Jane Birkin was my inspiration for the collection. classic French, '60s Jane

What is the organic and fairtrade fashion industry like?

Something like one per cent of clothing is made from organic cotton, which is a shame. It seems like environmental and ethical presence is really making its way into supermarkets and so many other areas, but for some reason people don't seem to question where their clothes are from

What has been your most alamorous fashion moment?

Probably when Chanel took me to Paris to try on an outfit for a premiere. I went around Coco Chanel's apartment. I found that really overwhelming.

Texting teens

Teens who text 120 times a day or more — and there seems to be a lot of them — are more likely to have had sex or used alcohol and drugs than kids who don't send as many messages, according to provocative new research.

The study's authors are not suggesting that "hyper-texting" leads to sex, drinking or drugs, but say it's startling to see an apparent link between excessive messaging and that kind of risky behaviour.

Handling a defiant teenager

There are a number of ways to reach out to your kids without losing your cool

You make rules, they break them. You ask questions, they ignore you. You say, "Do this," they say, "Make me!"

Oppositional behaviour is hard enough to cope with in toddlers, but when the defiant ones are 13 or 14 years old, you can't just put them down for a nap, give them a time-out or bribe them with stickers.

So how does a parent get through to a kid who is disrespectful?

Here, we offer some advice from Mary Muscari, a teacher at the Decker School of Nursing at Binghamton University in New York and co-author of Everything Parents Guide to Raising Adolescent Girls and Everything Parents Guide to Raising Adolescent Boys.

Be consistent and put all of the house rules in writing and hang it up in the house.

If you're looking to improve a specific behaviour or meet a goal, write up a contract and have your child sign it.

Muscari says that it's common for adolescents to do a lot of testing. "How much can I get away with?" But they don't really want to get away with things; they just want to see how far they can push their parents. They know exactly when to press your buttons."

Muscari stresses that

"If they think your job is more important than they are, that's a really bad place for a kid to be," most of this behaviour is normal, and other parents are going through it too.

"You are not crazy! It's annoying, it's horrible, but it's just like when they were two years old and they said, 'Wow! Look what I can do!' Only they're 13. They might be saying, 'I hate you! But they're thinking, 'Thank God you're putting these controls on me.'"

If foul language is an issue, you might try a 25-cent fine for each curse, and make sure grown-up violators pay too.

The money could be a reward for good behaviour, or teens could give it to a charity of their choice.

Muscari says encouraging teens to volunteer even if it's only a couple times a year— can also give them some perspective

"You don't want them to be totally wrapped up in themselves," she said.

The teen brain

Consider how brain development affects adolescent behaviour, advises Dr. Joseph Shrand, psychiatrist:

- Limbic system The part of the brain that controls emotions, which allows us to fell pleasure, anger and passion, works fine in adolescents.
- So when a kid treats a parent disrespectfully, don't respond with anger, but use empathy, respect and humour.

Could the future wealth of your family be as simple as 1-2-3?

New research suggests that couples who score well on a numeracy test fare better financially by middle age basic math problems be a predictor of your family's future fortunes? The answer may be as simple as

New research suggests that couples who score well on a test of numeracy appear to fare better financially by middle age than their counterparts who fail to make the grade on such a test.

Researchers explored the link between cognitive traits — particularly numeracy — of both spouses on the family's financial outcomes. They also examined who is typically responsible for making financial decisions in the household and why.

Numeracy is the ability to use or understand numerical techniques of

For the study, published in this month's edition of The Economic Journal, researchers relied on the Health and Retirement Study funded by the U.S. National Institute of Aging, using a sample of more than 11,000 people.

The HRS is a biennial, nationally representative longitudinal survey of Americans over age 50.

Its objective is to monitor economic transitions in work, income and wealth, and changes in health status.

"As you start getting into 50 and older age group, basic cognitive attributes may start to matter a lot, like memory, and how intact one is when it comes to their decision-making about anything financial, said study co-author James Smith, senior economist with RAND Corporation, a non-profit research organ-

"Since it is a financial decision and financial decisions usually involve basic arithmetic at some level like 'What is basic rate of return of this asset? How much risk is attached to this asset?' you would like to think your ability with numbers might matter."

Starting with the 2002 HRS, three questions were added to the core interview to test the numerical ability of respondents.

Researchers wrote that household wealth "increases sharply" as the numeracy score of either spouse rises, with vast differences between couples earning a perfect score compared to those who got zero.

When both spouses answered the three numeracv-related auestions wealth averaged $1.7 million. Meanwhile, among couples where neither spouse answered any questions correctly which occurred in 10 per cent of cases - the average was $200,000.

What's more, searchers found other cognitive skills including memory retrieval and intact mental status had far less influence on a household's wealth than numerical ability.

The man was the financial decision-maker in 62 per cent of the households studied. The preference is particularly evident when men are older and more educated than their wives.

However, even when men scored zero on the test, there was still a 50/50 chance they would be the household's financial decision-maker.

Smith said if a man is a college grad, in 75 per cent of the cases he's making the financial decisions no matter what the level of the wife's education.

For example, in the case of a 60-year-old couple who were married at 25, the decision of how family finances would be managed was probably made when they tied the knot - far different than how things are done now, Smith said.

One of the problems with letting men make the financial decisions is that since women typically outlive them, wives will be left with the responsibility and may not be particularly prepared because there may not have been many conversations on the subject, he said.

With people in their 20s and 30s, who have their own bank accounts and portfolio funds, there is no longer a completely shared set of financial assets where one person makes the decision, he said. Even within the sample when comparing people in their 50s to those in their 70s, a change was noticeable Retiring your kitchen garburator means you won't waste energy every time you flip that switch and you won't waste a huge amount of perfectly good drinking water either.

Backyard composting is a much better solution from an environmental perspective, and it will save you money on your utility bills.

Of course, either option is preferable to throwing organic waste into the land-fill

After $200,000 in retrofits, Planet Traveler is being billed as the greenest hotel in North America.

After sitting abandoned for a decade, a freshly refurbished three-storey building will soon be opening its doors to visitors in need of a temporary home away from home.

But patrons of Planet Traveler will discover there's more to the renovated digs than breathtaking panoramic views of the downtown Toronto skyline: it's being billed as the greenest hotel in North America.

Co-developers and business partners Tom Rand and Anthony Aarts have transformed the 930-square-metre building into a 114-bed hostel with a boutique hotel esthetic.

But perhaps more significant are the extensive changes involved in the green makeover of the space, which offers dormstyle bunk accommodations for $30 as well as private rooms for $75. They embarked on an extensive retrofit with the goal of reducing carbon emissions by 75 per cent.

Solar photovoltaic panels help power Planet Traveler, while another set of panels, solar thermal, heat the water on-site. Rand said they're able to produce an average of three kilowatts from the solar panels, enough to power two or three standard homes.

All the lighting is LED, illuminating the space for less than the energy of a four-slice toaster.

Rooms will be equipped with a vacancy sensor which only goes on once it's been manually activated. If there's been no activity within a room for half-hour, it will shut off, Aarts said.

She was so determined I would swim." But as Michelle dove into the water, that old, crippling feelings of fear washed over her. Then she said, "Just let it go."

Michelle and Carolyn would need to swim the routine of their lives to get past the American little girl from Calgary, who felt such horror and panic with her lifelong fear for water, was now a woman who had conquered them.

Michelle accomplished a lot more than a gold medal that day. She is now a wife, proud mother of four children and is enjoying life in Calgary. She recently launched a charitable fund called Inspiring Possibilities that will give parents financial support and encouragement to keep their children active in sports. She's also writing a book called, Sink, Swim or Float. It's all about getting past your fears and learning to jump into the deep end of the pool. Just like life.

Drinking, fighting and 'grinding' are causing officials across North America to cancel high school dances

This year's first dance at Glace Bay High School in Cape Breton may have been its last.

Fed up with a few stu-dents showing up seeming-ly drunk and hemlines getting increasingly shorter, the school became the second in the district to cancel dances until further

"It's like anything else — there is a pendulum that swings and the pendulum has swung to the point where we said that it's time to put the brakes on, take a breather, talk to the kids and re-evaluate," says principal Peter Campbell.

While the beat goes on in other schools, a number in Canada and the U.S. have been trying to crack down on provocative dancing, risque attire and underage drinking. In Moncton, N.B., Bernice MacNaughton High School has banned socalled grinding — a sexually suggestive dance that typically involves a female dancing in front of a male, back to front. Students there are required to dance face to face, says principal Gary Wilson.

Two years ago, students at Eastern Shore District School Musquodoboit Harbour, N.S., had to agree in writing to follow certain rules. including being drug- and alcohol-free and abstaining from grinding. But the Halifax Regional School Board says the school scuttled the contract and dances when too many students refused to sign the document. The school still holds proms.

In West Hollywood, Calif., administrators at Pacific Hills School have reportedly been known to threaten students who insist on dancing sexily with Burt Bacharach tunes.

Back in Cape Breton, Whitney Pier Memorial Junior High scrapped dances earlier this year because of "inappropriate behaviour," Charles haviour," says Charles Sheppard, a co-ordinator with the Cape Breton-Victoria Regional School Board. Sheppard wouldn't sav what behaviour led to the decision

Campbell, who's been the principal at Glace Bay High for four years, says his office hasn't received any complaints from students since cancelling the dances in September.

End of male domination

○ Examining how to make the world more female friendly ○ Women are better educated, earning more

Women are taking over the work world, or at least finally getting the representation they've lacked throughout histo-

In his book, What Women Want, author Paco Underhill writes that "we live in a world that is owned by men, designed by men, and managed by men, and yet we expect women to be active participants in it." Thankfully though this is changing.

Colleges and universities in the United States and Canada are now dominated by females, with 60 women to every 40 men and in a range of disciplines including law, medicine and architecture — formerly male dominated careers, "a trend that began in the 1970s" according to Underhill.

Outside of the work sphere women are the key buyers for the house hold and the acquisitioners of food for the family, this simple fact spurred growth of the farmers market and organic food movement.

"In 2005, a magical statistic stood out: for the first time in history, young women under the age of 30 in the largest American cities overtook men in earning power."

In fact in a New York City survey of wage earners between the ages of 21 and 30, women took home 17 per cent more pay than their male counterparts in equivalent positions.

WHAT WMEN WANT

THE GLOBAL MARKET TURNS FEMALE FRIENDLY

What Women Want By Paco Underhill

Simon & Schuster, 204 pages, $32

Underhill points out that there are a number of driving factors that have resulted in this shift, some alarming as they point to flaws in the education system, namely the learning disabilities of young boys such as reading, autism and ADHD which boys are far more likely to suffer from likely to suffer from.

"Most little girls are comfortable sitting; little boys tend to squirm, fidget, and daydream."

The key factor for the rise of Womendom though is babies... or lack there of. "Thanks to birth control- we have decoupled sex from procreation" which means the choice of if, when and with whom you have a child with.

A well researched and thoughtful look at why you should be thinking of women when you build, design, or create just about everything.

Argos make Ticats pay for mistakes

Toronto forces five turnovers as it upsets Hamilton in playoff battle

ARGONAUTS

TIGER-CATS

Matt Black and the Toronto Argonauts couldn't have picked a better time to earn their first win of the season over the Hamilton Tiger-Cats.

Black forced a fumble and recovered another as forced five Toronto turnovers to upset Hamilton 16-13 in the East Division semifinal yesterday to the dismay of an Ivor Wynne Stadium gathering

Toronto, in the playoffs for the first time since 2007, will face Montreal in the conference final next weekend. While the Alouettes will have home-field advantage, they did lose twice this season to the twice this season to the upstart Argos.

Black's recovery of a Marcus Thigpen fumble off a punt return set up Toronto's lone TD. Cleo Lemon's 12-yard strike to Spancer Wett anchored a Spencer Watt anchored a 10-point third quarter as the Argos erased a 6-3 halftime deficit to lead 13-6 while Hamilton starter Kevin Glenn was being treated for a knee injury.

"Turnovers are crucial in the regular season and even more crucial in the playoffs," said the unheralded second-year defen-sive back, who received the Argos' game ball afterwards. "Our gameplan all week was to get turnovers and give our offence good (field) position.

"In the playoffs field position dictates the game. The defence has free reign when you pin (the opposing offence) deep.'

Glenn, one of just two CFL quarterbacks to pass for 5,000 yards this season, left late in the first half with a hyperextended left knee. He was injured after being hit by Toron-to's Ricky Foley and walked off on his own before running to the Hamilton bench late in the third.

Turnovers were the big reason why Hamilton won all three regular-season meetings with Toronto. The Ticats held a decided 15-5 edge in that department, intercepting Lemon five times and while recovering three of his fumbles.

To lessen the threat of mistakes, the Argos adopted a very conservative gameplan that had Lemon consistently dumping off short passes rather than throwing downfield. Lemon finished 22-of-29 passing and recorded his first TD strike against Hamilton, but had just 134 yards in the air as overall.

Riders edge Lions in double overtime

Jason Clermont's 24-yard touchdown catch in double overtime gave the Saskatchewan Roughriders a 41-38 win over the B.C. Lions in the CFL West Division semifinal yesterday.

Darian Durant found the slotback over the middle and Clermont ran in for the winning score, sending the Roughriders to the West Division final against the Calgary Stampeders for the second year in a row.

It also capped an afternoon of great drama before a crowd of 29,215 at Mosiac Stadium, as the Lions rallied late to send the game into overtime.

Sports in brief

Chelsea loss narrows gap

SOCCER. The Premier League title race was thrown wide open yester-day thanks to leader Chelsea's shocking 3-0 home defeat to Sunderland and Arsenal's hard-fought 2-1 win at Everton.

Arsenal is now just two points behind Chelsea, with third-place Manchester United which drew 2-2 at Aston Villa on Saturday — a further point behind. Manchester City is fourth, six points behind the leaders, after drawing at home to Birmingham on Saturday.

Today's horoscope

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca

T Aries March 21-April 20

Avoid the temptation to take risks that don't need to be taken. While what you get out of life may be related to what you put in, you don't have to risk everything.

Taurus April 21-May 21

Have you noticed that your current situation bears an uncanny resemblance to what you've been through before? You should by now then know how to handle it.

II Gemini May 22-June 21

What's done is done and cannot be undone, so forget about yesterday, last week, last month or last year. Each day is a new beginning and what you start today could. should and will be amazing

Gancer June 22-July 22 Cancerians may not be the most daring members of the zodiac but you are in your own way ambitious and with Jupiter boosting your courage today you won't hesitate to take a chance of some kind.

Ω Leo July 23-Aug.23 You like to get your own way, and most of the time you do, but the planets urge you to meet others halfway, especially if you have several projects on the go at the same time.

TV Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 Anyone who tries to engage you in idle chatter or malicious gossip will soon learn you are not in the mood to play games. You have important things to do, stay focused.

Today's Sun-Jupiter link will help you find ways to ease your cash flow crisis, though the fact is you are not nearly as badly off as you think you are. However, you must save money, not spend it.

M Scorpio oct. 24-Nov. 22 You are smart enough to realize there will always be new things to learn. What you learn today will expand your awareness and open your eyes to new possibilities.

→ Sagittarius

Nov. 23-Dec. 21 If you are adrift in a sea of troubles you'll still find reasons to smile. Your life is pretty good at the moment, and about to get infinitely better...

り Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20

Everything that happens in your life is part of the grand design. Once you understand that fact at the deepest level you won't worry so much about day-to-day problems.

Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 Your prospects are good and getting better by the minute. Be selective. Aim always for quality and excellence.

H Pisces Feb. 19-March 20 A belief you have always taken for granted will be put under the spotlight today and you may be surprised to discover it no longer stands up to scrutiny. Fortunately it won't be too traumatic. There are other beliefs you can cling to. SALLY BROMPTON
